The newest special issue of the journal Reviews in Digital Humanities is out and edited by Professor Sarah E. Bond and Hannah Scates Kettler. The issue is focused on digital archaeology and provides assessments of four digital projects. Additionally, Professor Bond gave the keynote at the Illinois Classical Conference at Monmouth College last weekend and discussed, "A Less Perfect Union: Charioteer Factions and Politics in the Late Roman Empire."

Undergraduate history honors student Elisa Burba has been awarded the Hamod/Habhab/Keeshan Family Scholarship for 2024. This scholarship is in recognition of Kay Keeshan Hamod (PhD, 1976) and her family, and is given to an outstanding history major who is pursuing Honors in the History Major.

Professor Lina-Maria Murillo was interviewed for an article, "Midwest voters elect Republican leaders but don't agree with the laws they pass. Why?" that was modified and distributed across three Midwestern states: Iowa NPR, Nebraska NPR, and KCUR, NPR in Kansas City.

can explore interests outside of their specific major through a general education course. The course, taught in the fall semester, gives a historical perspective on business, science, geology, technology, politics, environment, and culture of the global oil industry.
